

Paul Wisner: A History of Five Bands

Ultrabreakfast • Calendar Girl • Stever Must Lead the Rebellion • Miskatonic • Ghosts and Shadows

This was AI generated and may contain mistakes

Paul Wisner has played guitar in Boston-area original-music rock bands for over three decades, and synthesizer in two of them. He has played on published albums in every era. Songwriting came late: he did almost no writing until Miskatonic and Ghosts and Shadows - before that, the only song he wrote was "Mary" in Ultrabreakfast. This history gathers every gig date, venue, recording project and album publication that could be verified from his email, his Facebook posts, press, label and streaming listings, and band pages.

How to read the gig lists: Each band has one gig list in date order, merging confirmed dates with announced listings from every source. For the 1990s bands, club calendars were rarely archived online. The lists give every date that survives in a citable source, and announced listings are marked as announced, not confirmed played. Where only a venue run is documented, venues are listed without inventing dates. Later Ghosts and Shadows dates, and Miskatonic's 2010-2011 calendar, come from Paul's own booking mail and announcements. One open question is flagged where it arises: the Favorite Records EP date - January 2011 in the band's announcement, against 2009 in The Noise and 2008 on Daykamp Music.

Sources are noted in each section. This edition adds gig histories researched from Paul's Gmail booking mail, his Facebook timeline, the Boston Phoenix archives, AllMusic, The Noise Boston calendar archive, the Daykamp Music blog, and the archived Miskatonic MySpace page, alongside the archived calendargirlrock.com site (Wayback Machine, 2000-2002 captures), WMBR playlist logs, and YouTube live-archive videos. All web URLs were checked October 3, 2026. Email references are described by subject/date, not reproduced. Photographs and album artwork are real band images from Bandcamp and, for Ultrabreakfast, a still from the 1997 Middle East performance video.

The through-line

The same Boston club circuit recurs for thirty years: Green Street Grill, T.T. the Bear's Place, the Middle East (upstairs and downstairs), the Paradise, Avalon, Harper's Ferry, Lizard Lounge, Midway Cafe, O'Brien's Pub and, later, Deep Cuts, Square Root and the Jungle. Bandmates recur too: Johnny and Nicole Anguish link Calendar Girl to Stever Must Lead the Rebellion; Liz Finger, Steve Kelly and Tim Farrell link Miskatonic back to Calendar Girl and Ultrabreakfast; Gabriella Lawrence, Steve Reynolds and Dean Fisher carry the story into Ghosts and Shadows.

Press at the time noticed the connections. The Tufts Daily profile of Calendar Girl in April 2001 notes Wisner had come from Ultrabreakfast, that drummer Dave Foy (spelled Foi in the article) had run the Northeastern University concert committee with him, and that bassist Eric Krauter joined after seeing the band's first show. A decade later Miskatonic's own bio proudly lists former members of Cheater Pint, Calendar Girl and Ultrabreakfast.

Labels and PR

Two Boston-area labels anchor the early discography: Catapult Records released Ultrabreakfast's Ice Cream Tricycle (1997), and Intelligent Records released Calendar Girl's Cool Rocketships in Space EP (1999) and Everyone But You (2001). Planetary, the Boston music PR firm, handled PR for Ultrabreakfast and Calendar Girl specifically.

1. Ultrabreakfast (1994-1999)

Paul's earliest documented band. The Tufts Daily (April 2001) confirms Paul was in the outfit before Calendar Girl, and Miskatonic's later bio lists Ultrabreakfast as a predecessor band. On Ice Cream Tricycle, "Mary" is the one song Paul wrote in this era - his only songwriting before Miskatonic. Johnny Anguish's May 2011 Daycamp Music track-by-track review names vocalist Josh Boughey, drummer Kristen Day, and Tim Farrell on slide guitar, and calls the album "a showcase for Paul Wisner's creative guitar effects" - on "Mary", "a sweet guitar line and a simple melody that works well with Josh Boughey's cool vocal delivery".

Name origin: the band was originally called "Breakfast" until another band with the same name made a legal threat (Paul's Facebook post, December 29, 2021).

Gigs

Every confirmed and announced date is merged into a single list in date order in the Ultrabreakfast - gigs section that follows.

Ultrabreakfast - gigs

Every surviving date in one list, in date order - 33 gigs, 1996-2014. Sources merged: the Billy Ruane videotape archive, the Boston Phoenix "Cellars" preview columns, and the Phoenix club ads and listings recovered by OCR of the microfilm run (Internet Archive, pub_boston-phoenix). Confirmed = a video or other record shows the show happened; Announced = a listing ran ahead of the show - announced, not confirmed played. Gig date is as stated in the ad, not the issue date. "Week of" = the listing ran in an alphabetical venue directory with no day header, so the exact day is undetermined; OCR-garbled venues are flagged unconfirmed.

Highlights: Aug 30, 1996 single-release party with Mary Timony; Nov 22, 1997 Ice Cream Tricycle CD-release party at Bill's Bar; Jan 30, 1999 "Wisner Productions presents" bill with both of Paul's bands.

Excluded: a garbled July 11, 1997 ad (OCR too damaged to use) and a January 10, 1997 preview blurb noting the band in rotation on the station's Sunday-night Boston Product show (not a gig ad).

Ultrabreakfast - press, radio and Daykamp Music

The Phoenix ran no live gig reviews of these bands; its Cellars columns were previews only. Brett Milano's June 19, 1997 Cellars feature cites producer/engineer Eric Masunaga's résumé, which includes production and engineering work with Sebadoh, Helium, Magnetic Fields, the Push Kings, and Ultrabreakfast.

From Daykamp Music (Johnny Anguish's blog)

Johnny's September 2014 post on the reunion corroborates the September 19, 2014 Cuisine en Locale show: "their first show in 15 years as part of WMBR's Pipeline! at 25 celebration, I was there." He wrote: "It would be hard for me to overstate how important Ultrabreakfast has been to my time in the Boston music scene. Their indie rock, janglefuzz tunes brought me out to the clubs. They taught me who Billy Ruane was."

His May 2011 track-by-track review of Ice Cream Tricycle (1997) runs under 40 minutes, "even a conceptual song trilogy within the album's ranks". Kristen Day's kick-snare beat gives "On The Floor" "an almost country feel", and "Wishlist" mentions "Superchunk, albino kangaroos, time machines and dear departed local legend Billy Ruane".

College radio

WMBR 88.1 FM Cambridge logged 9 Ultrabreakfast plays, August 1996-July 2003, on Breakfast of Champions, Aural Fixation and the James Dean Death Car Experience ("Disappearing", "Broken-Hearted Wine", "We're Safe", "Lady Fay", "Cacaphone", "Wishlist"). WMBR holds no 1990s-2000s concert-listing archive; this airplay log is the surviving radio record.

No complete 1990s gig calendar survives online. The band's period is placed 1994-1999 from Paul's chronology and the 1997 album.

2. Calendar Girl (1998-2002)

Lineup: Johnny Anguish (guitar/vocals), Paul Wisner (guitar/vocals), Eric Krauter (bass/vocals), Dave Foy (drums; Tufts Daily spells Foy). Formed in late 1997 (AllMusic biography) when Wisner and Anguish, co-workers with the same CDs on their desks, decided to play together; Krauter joined after the first show, Foy was Wisner's Northeastern University concert-committee partner. Krauter also played with Drumming on Glass (AllMusic).

The band started playing live in January 1998. By their third show "King of Bad Luck" was getting college and local-music-show airplay; at the end of 1998 it was in WZBC's Top 90.3 of 1998. The full gig log survives on the archived calendargirlrock.com site (Wayback Machine, 2000-2002).

Recordings

Date	Title	Details
1998	Demo	Recorded in 1998; won local critical acclaim and radio airplay before the EP (AllMusic biography).
May 1999; Intelligent Records, March 2000	Cool Rocketships in Space	7 songs, self-released May 1999, picked up by Intelligent Records March 2000. Engineered by Darron Burke (Gigolo Aunts). Tracks: Two Piece, King of Bad Luck, Nub & Tug, Lead Away, Not Again, Cadaver, Sasquatch. CD release party May 15, 1999, The Linwood.
2000	Compilation appearances	"King of Bad Luck" on Twisted Rico 2000 ; "O Christmas Tree" on Tremont Ale Essential Holiday Mix . Holiday single "O Christmas Tree" listed Dec 25, 2000.
Spring 2001	Everyone But You	13 songs, 43:34, Intelligent Records. Recorded March-December 2000 at Makeshift Studio, Jamaica Plain, MA (per AllMusic: https://www.allmusic.com/album/everyone-but-you-mw0000966461). Recorded and mixed by Darron Burke, mastered by Dana White, design by Nicole Johnson. CD release party April 7, 2001 at T.T. the Bear's. AllMusic dates this album to spring 2000, conflicting with the band's own site (spring 2001); the band's dating is kept here.
2002	American Legends Volume II (split single with *AM Stereo)	Sold only at shows. Calendar Girl track "Huck Finn" recorded by Jon Lupfer at Q Division Studios. "Huck Finn" single listed May 1, 2002; "Want Brains (Must Eat Brains)" listed Oct 24, 2002 (written by Paul).
January 2002 sessions	Q Division sessions with Jon Lupfer	"Dust" and "Motion Detector" tracked and mixed; "Winter Stars" begun. The lost early-2000s sessions were released August 1, 2025 as Where We Need To Be .

Film placement

"King of Bad Luck" was used in the Troma film Terror Firmer, which debuted at Cannes and played the Coolidge Corner Theatre (band news, August 2000).

Calendar Girl - press

What the press said

CMJ Music Marathon '99 Festival Guide: "Sugary-sweet, fuzzy guitar rock that's catchier than a case of mononucleosis in a game of spin the bottle." A search of CMJ magazine found no further reviews of any of Paul's bands beyond this festival-guide blurb.

Steve Morse, The Boston Globe (on the April 14, 2001 Lizard Lounge show): "Many punk-influenced power-pop bands dot the landscape, but Calendar Girl is definitely in the top tier... celebrated a fine new CD, Everyone But You."

Matt Ashare, The Boston Phoenix: "The disc delivers a playful yet driving mix of art-damaged indie guitar pop and punkier riff rock... singer/guitarist Johnny Anguish sounds as if he were vying for a spot in the losercore hall of fame with his amusingly deadpan delivery..."

The Big Takeover: "A CD that's fast and fuzzy, polished and chaotic and busy. This is ultraPop, and it's catchy, like a sonic infection." Amplifier: "One of Boston's fresher picks, Calendar Girl is hardly 90210... Think The Rentals minus the moog and strings, Creeper Lagoon with a little more dare, or once-local gang Sebadoh with a lot less Lou Barlow." The band also collected pans (Vice, Splendid E-zine), kept here for balance.

PR: Planetary, the Boston music PR firm, handled PR for Calendar Girl (as it had for Ultrabreakfast).

Gig list (1998-2002)

The band's archived site logs more than 70 shows, and the Boston Phoenix listings add dozens of dated shows on top. All of them are merged into a single list in date order in the next section - band-log dates and Phoenix ads together, confirmed dates marked as such. Regular rooms across the run: T.T. the Bear's, The Linwood, Middle East Upstairs and Downstairs, The Skybar (Somerville), Abbey Lounge, O'Brien's, Lizard Lounge, Kendall Cafe and Green Street Grill. First show January 25, 1998 (Green Street Grill); last listed show October 25, 2002 (The Linwood). No YouTube videos of Calendar Girl were found; searches return unrelated artists with the same name.

Calendar Girl - gigs

Every surviving date in one list, in date order - 49 gigs, 1998-2002. Sources merged: the band's own gig log from the archived calendargirlrock.com (Wayback Machine, 2000-2002; the site logs 70+ shows) and the Boston Phoenix club ads and listings recovered by OCR of the microfilm run (Internet Archive, pub_boston-phoenix). Phoenix rows are Announced, not confirmed played, unless the band log confirms the date - those rows are marked Confirmed. "Week of" = no day header in the venue directory - day undetermined; OCR-garbled venues are flagged unconfirmed.

Also in the Phoenix: an August 11, 2000 preview confirming "King of Bad Luck" in Troma's Terror Firmer, and a July 14, 2000 correction that Dave Foy drummed for both Calendar Girl and Dragstrip Courage. A 2006 "Dirt Mall (ex-Calendar Girl)" listing is Johnny Anguish's later band, not Calendar Girl.

Calendar Girl - on the radio

WMBR 88.1 FM aired live "Pipeline!" sessions on October 19, 1999 and July 10, 2001. The band also appeared on WMFO 91.5 FM "On The Town" (June 27, 2001) and gave interviews on WMWM 91.7 FM Salem (March 15 and March 23, 2000). Everyone But You placed at No. 100 on WMBR's Top 100 of 2001, and the "Huck Finn" split single reached No. 1 on WMBR's weekly Top 35 on May 21, 2002.

WMBR's playlist archive logs 31 Calendar Girl plays from 1999 to 2026, including "Dust" from Where We Need To Be in October 2025 and "Bad Horse" in February 2026 - the archival release finding new airplay two decades on. WMBR's website holds no archive of 1990s-2000s concert listings (current listings only); its searchable playlist database, covering 1984-2026, documents airplay rather than gig dates.

Radio details from the archived calendargirlrock.com news and radio pages and the WMBR playlist archive, checked October 2026.

3. Stever Must Lead the Rebellion (2011-2012 documented)

EP cover: ...Must Lead The Rebellion (2012). Artwork by Nicole Johnson of Daykamp Creative.

A short-lived side project where Paul played synthesizer - focused on interesting sounds rather than piano playing. Despite the name, Stever was not a member: "Stever" (Steve Reynolds) was only the inspiration, an ironic tribute - he would be the most unlikely leader of a rebellion.

Paul recalls writing and recording starting sometime after 2003, possibly before the band had a name. That earlier period cannot be verified from his mailbox, which starts in 2010. Documented activity is 2011-2012: practice-space threads with Johnny Anguish run November 2011 to January 2013, and the April-May 2012 threads never use the name "Stever", consistent with an unnamed-project phase.

4. Miskatonic (2007-2011, reunion 2026)

Lineup (core): Tim Farrell (guitar, vocals), Paul Wisner (guitar, synth, vocals), Steve Kelly (bass), Mark Patti (drums). Lead vocals changed three times in the first year: Gabriella Lawrence (first gig only — Mar 25, 2006), then Lauran O'Neil (from Apr 21, 2006 — per Paul), then Elizabeth Firger (also Elizabeth Firger Smith) by September 2006 onward. Described as a potent mixture of new wave and rock and roll, 80s synth and bass vibes, punky guitar textures with Firger's infectious melodic vocals (Bandmine).

Singer timeline: Gabriella Lawrence — first gig only, Mar 25, 2006. Lauran O'Neil — from Apr 21, 2006 (T.T. the Bear's), per Paul; the MySpace snapshot two days after that show still lists Gabriella Lawrence, believed stale. Elizabeth Firger — by September 2006: the Emergenza page, updated Sep 15, 2006, lists "Elizabeth Firger" (emergenza.net). See the Singer column in the gig table.

Songwriting. The band's own bio credits "Miskatonic melodies provided by Tim Farrell (guitar, vocals) and Paul Wisner (guitar, synth, vocals)" - "two years of song writing pulled from a diverse set of influences (from The Cars to The Pixies)". This is where Paul's songwriting began in earnest (before that, only "Mary" in Ultrabreakfast). The name comes from H.P. Lovecraft's Miskatonic University.

Recordings

Date	Title	Notes
2007	Let Us Entertain Us	First release. Commercial and college airplay. Northeast Performer: bombastically catchy. The Noise on Dregs of the World: kicks like a page from the book of new wave Johnny Lydon; damn near perfect. Daykamp Music (July 2011) review quoted in full on the next page.
Jan 2011 (announced as January release)	Favorite Records EP	3 tracks: Favorite Records, Sudden Silence, Taunt. Date unresolved - flagged for Paul: January 2011 announced, against 2009 in The Noise and 2008 on Daykamp Music. See next page.
Nov 5, 2011	Life of the Party	CD released at the band's final show, VFW Davis Square, Somerville (see gigs).

Honours

Emergenza Edition 2007 finalist: Dec 14, 2006 Middle East Upstairs (3rd, 29 votes); Apr 7, 2007 Middle East Downstairs (1st, 79); May 25, 2007 Paradise Rock Club semifinal (3rd, 71); Jun 28, 2007 House of Blues final (6th, 59) — emergenza.net. 2008 winner, 92.5 The River Rising Star contest.

Miskatonic - what Daykamp Music said

Johnny Anguish reviewed both Miskatonic releases on his Daykamp Music blog in 2011, track by track.

Let Us Entertain Us (reviewed July 2011)

"Toss The Cars and the B-52s in a blender. Add a dash of Fountains of Wayne and a smidge of The Rentals. Voila! Miskatonic."

Paul Wisner's synth melodies are featured prominently on "Sno-Cone Girl" and "Extra Terrestrial Girl". Singer Elizabeth Firger "absolutely wails during 'The Fall,' which also features some intense drumming from Mark Patti". "The Extra Mile" has "Steve Kelly's melodic bass line", and "Tim Farrell shines" on "Dregs Of The World" "with his spitting vocal delivery".

Favorite Records EP (reviewed October 2011)

Johnny dates the EP to 2008 - "in 2008 they brought us another EP of synth-happy new wave inspired power pop" - and notes "Miskatonic is breaking up soon." That makes three dates in print for one EP: 2008 (Daykamp Music), 2009 (The Noise, February 2012), and a January 2011 release announced by the band. The discrepancy is left open here for Paul to resolve.

On the tracks: "Favorite Records" is "infectious, with snappy drums, pop culture references and a sing-along chorus"; "Sudden Silence" "has a cool ending"; and on "Taunt" and across the EP, "Vocalist Elizabeth Firger seems more confident on this EP than on Let Us Entertain Us."

Miskatonic - gigs

Every surviving date in one list, in date order - 30 gigs, 2006-2026. Sources merged: Boston Phoenix club ads and listings (OCR of the microfilm run, Internet Archive, pub_boston-phoenix), a 2006 MySpace snapshot, The Noise Boston calendar, Paul's Gmail booking mail (2010-2011 and the 2025-2026 reunion) and Daykamp Music. Emergenza dates and results are from the band's official Emergenza record (emergenza.net), which supersedes the Phoenix ads where they differ. Phoenix rows are Announced, not confirmed played, unless another source confirms the date. "Week of" = no day header in the venue directory - day undetermined. Paul's mailbox has nothing before 2010, so the fully confirmed calendar covers the final two years; the 2006–2009 rows are Phoenix announced listings, with the singer succession noted where known.

Date	Venue	Bill / notes	Singer	Status & source
Sat Mar 25, 2006	Middle East Upstairs, Cambridge	Silent Service + Miskatonic + Morning Theft + Dylan in the Movies — the band's first gig (per Paul; Middle East Upstairs per his April 2011 booker email).	Gabriella Lawrence	Announced - Boston Phoenix, 3/24/2006
Fri Apr 21, 2006	T.T. the Bear's Place, Cambridge	Eunuch + December Sound + Miskatonic + Attorneys. Per Paul, Luran O'Neil sang this show; Gabriella Lawrence played only the first gig (Mar 25, above). MySpace snapshot two days later still lists Gabriella, believed stale.	Lauran O'Neil *	Confirmed - MySpace gig list; Boston Phoenix, 4/21/2006; singer per Paul

Placed 3rd with 29 votes.	Elizabeth Firger	Confirmed - Emergenza official record, emergenza.net (corrects Boston Phoenix ad date of Dec 9)
Week of Jan 5-11, 2007 (day undetermined)	Bulfinch Yacht Club, Boston	Silent Service + Miskatonic + OK Thursday + Hyphens	Elizabeth Firger	Announced - Boston Phoenix, 1/5/2007
Sat Apr 7, 2007	Middle East Downstairs, Cambridge	Emergenza Festival (Edition 2007, 2nd step): Wookie Monster, Dose of Reality, Stu Mac & Clive, 18 Wheels of Justice, Ben & Barty, Miskatonic, Maple Street Project, John Paul, Jeff Fertig. Placed 1st with 79 votes.	Elizabeth Firger	Confirmed - Emergenza official record, emergenza.net (corrects Boston Phoenix ad date of Apr 10)
Fri May 25, 2007	Paradise Rock Club, Boston	Emergenza Festival (Edition 2007, semifinal): Miskatonic. Placed 3rd with 71 votes.	Elizabeth Firger	Confirmed - Emergenza official record, emergenza.net
Thu Jun 28, 2007	House of Blues, Boston	Emergenza Festival (Edition 2007, final): Miskatonic. Placed 6th with 59 votes.	Elizabeth Firger	Confirmed - Emergenza official record, emergenza.net

* Luran O'Neil's tenure is per Paul's recollection (corrected Oct 4, 2026): Gabriella Lawrence played only the first gig (Mar 25, 2006), Luran by Apr 21, 2006 (T.T.'s); the MySpace snapshot two days later still listing Gabriella is believed stale. No public source independently dates Luran's gigs, so assignments in that window are unverified. Elizabeth Firger is listed ("Elizabeth Firge") on the Emergenza page, updated Sep 15, 2006 (emergenza.net), narrowing Luran's tenure to spring–summer 2006. Emergenza dates supersede Phoenix ad dates.

Earlier context

Per Paul, Miskatonic's first gig was Sat Mar 25, 2006 at Middle East Upstairs (Silent Service + Miskatonic + Morning Theft + Dylan in the Movies, per Boston Phoenix listings; venue per his April 2011 booker email). Shared bills incl. John Powhida International Airport, Silent Service, The Dollyrots, Ad Frank, Francine, Top Heavy, AM Stereo, The Acrobrats. Bandmine also lists Avalon, Paradise, Harper's Ferry, Hard Rock Cafe (no dates).

Live video

"The Fall" at the Middle East, Emergenza Battle of the Bands, May 2007: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=BWWBv8URzs> . No WMBR playlist mentions; the radio record rests on the 92.5 The River Rising Star win.

Gmail in September 2025 shows the reunion being booked: thread Re: Show openings for Miskatonic with Tim Farrell, Steve Kelly, Elizabeth Firger Smith and TinyOak Booking (Heather Timmons), Sep 25-29, 2025.

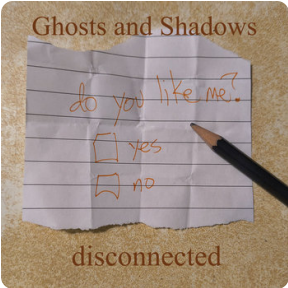

Note on dates: releases run 2007-2011; the band's own later site gives 2012-2018 in one listing, which appears to reflect web presence rather than new releases. No albums after 2011 are documented.

The Phoenix search covered 724 issues (January 1994-March 2013). It found nothing for Stever Must Lead the Rebellion - consistent with the band having played no gigs - and nothing for Ghosts and Shadows: the paper folded in March 2013, before the band's first show on October 18, 2013 (the 1999 "Ghosts and Shadows" hits were a Somerville art exhibition).

5. Ghosts and Shadows (2013-present)

Also billed as Ghosts. Current lineup: Paul Wisner (guitar), Gabriella Lawrence (vocals), Steve Reynolds (bass), Dean Fisher (drums), in place since 2016. Vision: early Cure records Faith and Seventeen Seconds, except with female vocals, surrealist themes, sparse orchestration, moderate tempos (Bandcamp). Contact: ghostsboston@gmail.com; booking via TinyOak (Heather Timmons).

Album art: Disconnected (2025).

History (background)

Origins. The band was founded by Gabriella Lawrence, Paul Wisner, KSushi and Steve Reynolds at a Halloween party. Paul had been in Miskatonic (Gabriella briefly a member too); KSushi and Steve Reynolds had played in Cheater Pint. KSushi left in 2016; drummer Dean Fisher joined and reincarnated the band, settling the current lineup. The first show (October 18, 2013, RADIO, Somerville) featured that founding lineup: Paul Wisner, Gabriella Lawrence, KSushi and Steve Reynolds.

Ghosts and Shadows - gigs

Every surviving date in one list, in date order - 31 gigs, 2013-2026. All Boston-area unless noted. Sources: Paul's Gmail booking emails (TinyOak / Heather Timmons), his Facebook announcements and gig listings. There are no Boston Phoenix listings to add - the paper folded in March 2013, before the band's first show.

November 4, 2023 he published the Full of Stars video, music from the 2019 album recorded with David Minehan at Woolly Mammoth Sound.

Research limits - what could not be found

No Stever gigs were found anywhere, including a full-text search of 724 Boston Phoenix issues (1994-2013). That search added 82 listings (26 Ultrabreakfast, 36 Calendar Girl, 20 Miskatonic), cited as “Boston Phoenix, [issue date]”; dates come from ad text, and “day undetermined”/OCR-garbled venues are flagged unconfirmed. setlist.fm has no artist pages for any of the five bands. WMBR's site has no 1990s-2000s concert-listing archive; its record is airplay only. thenoise.com is now an unrelated football site, and the magazine archive at thenoise-boston.com is robots-excluded after a domain hijacking; the Noise Board calendar yielded one listing (Miskatonic at Precinct, December 11, 2010) before archive.org errors halted deeper reading. Miskatonic's standalone website was never archived; its MySpace page yielded the April 2006 gigs and lineup, but mid-period snapshots were unreadable. Paul's photo library contains no flyers, posters, or ticket stubs for any band. Ultrabreakfast has no complete 1990s club calendar, and no setlists survive. No CMJ reviews were found beyond the Music Marathon '99 Guide blurb, and no Calendar Girl videos were found on YouTube.

Principal sources are cited in each section.

Bibliography and research guide for Boston bands

This bibliography is written to be reused. It lists the source types that rebuilt the five band histories in this document, what each source can and cannot prove, and how to search it for your own band. It is not a list of links to this document alone: it is a working map of where Boston club-era evidence survives.

The core rule: a listing is not a gig, airplay is not a gig, and a release date in a database is not automatically the band's date. Keep three columns separate as you research - announced, played, and released - and only merge them when two independent sources agree. This document flags that distinction throughout, for example the Boston Phoenix shows are labelled announced, not confirmed played.

Start here: a five-step method

Step	Do this	Why
1. Fix the names	List every spelling, former name, and side-project name (for example Ghosts and Shadows is also billed as Ghosts).	Most databases index one spelling only; Calendar Girl searches also return unrelated artists with the same name.
2. Fix the people	List every member and every other band they played in.	Bandmates are the bridges: in this history Johnny Anguish links Calendar Girl to Stever Must Lead the Rebellion and to the Daykamp Music reviews of Miskatonic.
3. Fix the releases first	Build the discography from label, Bandcamp and database listings before hunting gigs.	Release dates anchor the timeline; gigs cluster around them (for example the Everyone But You release party at T.T. the Bear's, April 7, 2001).
4. Then hunt gigs by venue	Search one venue and one year at a time, not only the band name.	1990s club calendars were rarely archived by band name; venue runs are often all that survive.
5. Preserve everything	Save the URL, the capture date, and a screenshot or PDF of each find.	Sites vanish and domains get hijacked; this document lost The Noise's web archive that way.

Bibliography - archived press and the archived web

1. The Boston Phoenix (1973-2013) - the single richest Boston source

The Boston Phoenix was Boston's alternative weekly and the paper of record for the club scene. After it closed in 2013 its archive was donated to Northeastern University, and in 2021 the Internet Archive put its master microfilm online as The Boston Phoenix 1973-2013 - about 2,100 issues, freely downloadable after Northeastern extended the rights. For a band history this gives you club ads, the weekly Cellars preview columns, reviews, and scene reporting in one searchable run.

Overview and history: Music Museum of New England, "The Boston Phoenix" - <https://www.mmone.org/the-boston-phoenix/> ; Northeastern University, "An Ode to the (Now Digital) Boston Phoenix" (Dec 22, 2021) - <https://news.northeastern.edu/2021/12/22/an-ode-to-the-now-digital-boston-phoenix/> ; donation announcement - <https://news.northeastern.edu/2015/11/24/boston-phoenix-archives-donated-to-northeastern/>

How to use it: search the Internet Archive's Phoenix collection at archive.org for your band name, then for each member's other bands, then for your regular venues. Read the Cellars columns as announced shows. Note the limit this document found: the big display ads from Boston clubs are images - the microfilm OCR reads the small text listings and text ads well, but a display ad may need to be read visually from the page image (see any issue at archive.org, for example the October 2, 1973 issue viewer linked in the research notes).

2. The Wayback Machine (Internet Archive)

For dead band websites, MySpace pages, label pages and venue calendars, start at web.archive.org. This history rests on it: the full Calendar Girl gig log (70+ shows, 1998-2002) survives only on the archived calendargirlrock.com captures from 2000-2002, and Miskatonic's April 2006 gigs survive only on its archived MySpace page.

How to use it: search the exact old domain, open the calendar of captures, and read captures across several years - a gig log is often split across captures. Save the capture timestamp with every fact you take. See also the Internet Archive's Boston collection notes at <https://blog.archive.org/tag/boston/>

3. Northeastern University - Snell Library Archives and Special Collections

The physical counterpart to the digital Phoenix: Northeastern's Snell Library holds the donated Phoenix archives (including sister papers, Boston After Dark, Stuff, and WFNX radio records) and the Boston Globe Library Collection - over a million photographs and five million negatives plus newspaper clippings from the Globe, Herald, Phoenix and other papers. This is the place to look for unpublished photos of your band and for print reviews that were never digitised.

Contact and visiting information: Archives and Special Collections, 92 Snell Library, Northeastern University - <https://phoenix.library.northeastern.edu/contact-2/> ; orientation handout - https://library.northeastern.edu/wp-content/uploads/2022/08/intro_to_archives_handout_-_orientation.pdf (both checked October 2026).

4. College and community radio - airplay logs and concert reports

WMBR 88.1 FM (MIT, Cambridge) - wmbr.org. The most useful radio source for Boston bands of this era. Its searchable playlist database (linked from wmbr.org as the track-blaster playlist search) logs individual plays by artist and song across decades - this document logs 9 Ultrabreakfast plays (1996-2003), 31 Calendar Girl plays (1999-2026) and 5 Ghosts and Shadows plays (2013-2018) from it, plus chart placings such as Everyone But You at No. 100 on WMBR's Top 100 of 2001. WMBR's weekly concert report on wmbr.org is the current-listings companion; archived captures of it (via the Wayback Machine) are the way to recover historical listings.

What radio proves: a play proves the recording existed and reached a DJ by that date - invaluable when a release date is disputed (see the Favorite Records EP conflict on pages 16-17). It does not prove a gig. The same method applies to the other Boston college stations that covered local bands - WZBC (Boston College), WMFO (Tufts), WERS (Emerson) and WHRB (Harvard): search each station's playlist archive and its Wayback captures, and ask the station about paper logs for the pre-web years.

5. Gig, setlist and concert databases setlist.fm and Concert Archives (concertarchives.org) are crowd-sourced concert databases searchable by artist, venue and city. Use them to cross-check dates and to find bills you shared. Treat an absence as no evidence either way: this document found no setlist.fm artist pages for any of its five bands, including Miskatonic, which is well documented elsewhere. See Concert Archives' band and concert pages at <https://www.concertarchives.org/concert-archives> for the shape of a contributed history.

Venue and promoter records. Where databases fail, go to the room: archived venue calendars (Wayback Machine), promoter mailing lists and archives (in this history, TinyOak Booking's emails resolved several Ghosts and Shadows venues), and festival archives such as the WBCN Rock and Roll Rumble, CMJ Music Marathon guides, and the Emergenza festival - all of which appear in these band histories and all of which published bills.

6. Live recordings

Live Music Archive (the etree collection at archive.org). A free collection of concert recordings built by tapers and bands since 1996 - over 250,000 recordings. Search it by band and by venue; a dated audience tape is primary evidence a show happened and gives you the setlist. Background: https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Live_Music_Archive and the Internet Archive blog, <https://blog.archive.org/tag/live-music-archive/>. YouTube is the video equivalent: search band plus venue plus year. This history's earliest moving image, Ultrabreakfast at the Middle East in 1997, survives in the Billy Ruane live archive on YouTube - fan archives of that kind exist for many Boston rooms.

7. Release and credit databases

Source	Use it for	Watch out for
Discogs (discogs.com)	Physical pressings: label, catalogue number, format, country, label scans of covers and spines. The best source for proving a CD or record exists as dated here (for example Ultrabreakfast, Ice Cream Tricycle , Catapult Records CAT 012, 1997).	User-built: check the images, not only the text. How the database search works: https://support.discogs.com/hc/en-us/articles/360003622014-How-To-Browse-Search-In-The-Database
MusicBrainz (musicbrainz.org)	Relationships: who played with whom, aliases, and the identifiers that link an artist across setlist.fm and other databases. See http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/MusicBrainz for what it collects.	Thin for club-level Boston bands; add your band rather than assuming it is complete.
AllMusic (allmusic.com)	Biographies, release dates and album credits in one place; this history uses its Calendar Girl biography and the Everyone But You album page.	Dates drift: AllMusic dates Everyone But You a year earlier than the band's own site. Always prefer the band or label source and note the conflict.
Bandcamp (bandcamp.com)	Release-day timestamps, liner notes and the current home of most Boston independent releases; this history dates Stever's EP (Dec 11, 2012) and the Ghosts and Shadows catalogue from it.	Pages change silently; capture the date you saw it.

8. Local press and scene memory

Beyond the Phoenix: The Noise (Boston's long-running local-music magazine, founded 1981 - see <https://bostonphoenix.com/archive/music/96/09/19/NOISE.html>), Boston Groupie News (archive at BostonGroupieNews.com, e.g. <https://BostonGroupieNews.com/News020524.html>), the Boston Globe, college newspapers such as the Tufts Daily (April 2001 Calendar Girl profile), and scene blogs such as Daykamp Music (daykampmusic.com), whose track-by-track reviews anchor the Ultrabreakfast and Miskatonic pages here. Search each for every member name, not only the band name.

9. Your own and your bandmates' archives

The sources that resolved the most questions here were private: Gmail booking threads (which fixed venues public listings got wrong), the Facebook timeline, and bandmates' posts. Export and search your own email and social archives first, then ask bandmates for theirs. Scan flyers, posters and ticket stubs, then use text recognition on the scan - the Phoenix display-ad point applies: small text is machine-readable, artwork often is not. If no flyer survives, say so.

AI Prompt - research your own band history

Give the following prompt to your AI assistant, filling in the bracketed parts. It is the same research method used for this document, written so another Boston-area musician can run it for their own bands.

Copy and paste the following into your AI assistant, filling in the bracketed parts:

Research the history of my Boston-area bands and build a per-band history document.

My bands:

1. [BAND NAME] ([YEARS ACTIVE]) – I played [ROLE, e.g. guitar/vocals]
2. [BAND NAME] ([YEARS ACTIVE]) – I played [ROLE]

(add as many as needed)

For each band, find:

- History: formation, members and their roles, how it ended
- Releases: every release with dates, labels, track lists, and links (Bandcamp first, then Spotify)
- Gigs: every show you can verify, with dates, venues, and bills
- Press and radio: reviews, interviews, airplay logs
- Photos: any band photos or flyers you can find

Sources to check, in this order:

1. My own materials, which I will provide: old emails, Facebook timeline, flyers, setlists, demos.
2. The Wayback Machine (web.archive.org): my old band websites, club calendars, mp3.com artist pages. Use the CDX API to enumerate captures.
3. The Internet Archive's Boston Phoenix collection (1973–2013, fully OCR'd): download the _djvu.txt files for my active years and search the club ads and listings for the band name.
4. WMBR 88.1 FM playlist archives and weekly concert reports (wmbr.org, plus Wayback captures of older pages); WZBC playlists.
5. Daykamp Music (daykampmusic.com), The Noise magazine archives, Boston Phoenix online archive.
6. setlist.fm, concertarchives.org, do617, and venue sites (Middle East, T.T. the Bear's, etc.).
7. Discogs, AllMusic, MusicBrainz for release data; YouTube for old gig footage.
8. Northeastern University Archives holds the physical Boston Phoenix run if deeper digging is needed.

Rules:

- Only report gigs, releases, and facts you can source. Cite the source for each.
- When sources conflict (e.g. two different release dates), report all versions and flag the conflict instead of picking one.
- Never invent a gig, release, or review. If you can't verify it, say so.
- Ask me to confirm anything only I would know (lineup changes, unreleased material) rather than guessing.

Deliverable: one section per band – History, Discography (with links), Gig history, Press and radio – plus a bibliography of the sources used so other bands can follow the same trail.
